

COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIPS

The Alex House Project (TAHP) is recognized as a pioneer for peer-driven youth recruitment and transformational development in hard-to-reach communities. Organizations and institutions throughout New York City call on TAHP for access, strategy, and services to engage young women of color.

THREE TYPES OF MUTUALLY BENEFICIAL RELATIONSHIPS

1. WE REFER TO YOU.

We are delighted to refer young parents and families to other organizations that serve young parents. For example:

- » Delgracia Corp is a vital partner in supporting young moms, children, and families referred by TAHP. Delgracia provides onsite and in-home visits and attends court and school meetings with young parents as needed. TAHP referred participants are assigned a social worker and intern throughout their care term.

Additional partners to which TAHP refers parents include:

- » NY Foundling
- » Lutheran Social Services
- » Brownsville Community Justice Center
- » NYU Lutheran Family Health Centers
- » Healthy Families Red Hook
- » Red Hook Initiative
- » Carnegie Hall/Lullaby Project
- » Addabbo Clinic (WIC Center)
- » Incredible Credible Messengers
- » Little Essentials
- » Sank of a Womb and Wellness {Doula}

2. TWO-WAY REFERRALS.

Our community-serving relationships often evolve to support two-way referrals. For example:

- » With the Brownsville Community Justice Center, TAHP interviews and enrolls eligible moms while the Center provides direct contact information to our case manager for assistance. The Center provides onsite space for TAHP to facilitate parenting classes for their clients, and when appropriate, the Center refers expectant and parenting moms to TAHP for additional support services.
- » Urban Upbound provides youth and adults tools and resources needed to achieve economic prosperity. TAHP sends our participants to Urban Upbound for training and placement services for entry-level jobs. In return, Urban Upbound refers expectant and current moms to benefit from our in-depth supportive programming.

Additional TAHP two-way referral partners include:

- » Mercy First
- » NY Foundling
- » Delgracia Corp
- » Red Hook Initiative
- » Rising Ground Mother and Child Program
- » Pave Academy Charter School
- » Addabbo Clinic (WIC Center)
- » South Brooklyn High School
- » Incredible Credible Messengers
- » Sank of a Womb and Wellness {Doula}

3. YOU HIRE US.

Other partners contract with TAHP for peer-led parent training, leadership training, or parent and youth recruitment. For example:

- » With community organizations such as Red Hook Initiative, TAHP offers fee for service and on sight parenting classes and serves as a liaison, effectively recruiting parents from the community to maximize supportive community services. As a peer-led organization, TAHP is uniquely capable of building trusting community relationships. As a result, other organizations look to TAHP for assistance in finding, vetting, and placing parents and families in supportive services.

Additional TAHP partners include:

- » Administration for Children's Services (ACS)

At TAHP, we attend to the quality of every relationship and track our individual and collective results with care.
